Station Facts

Located on the north side of the University of Texas at Dallas campus – one of the fastest-growing universities in the nation – the UT Dallas Station will be a key transit point for many of the 31,000 students to access the Dallas region via the Silver Line Regional Rail.

UT Dallas offers over 148 academic programs to students from more than 100 countries, making the Silver Line's connection to DFW Airport a major asset for the university community. The university also has plans for a large transit-oriented development (TOD) project near the station, bringing more housing, retail and restaurant options within a short walk from the station.
